THE ORIGINS OF TODAY'S POLITICAL PARTIES

- The first political party was formed in the United States in 1787 and called themselves the Federalist
- Not so long afterwards the Anti Federalist were formed calling themselves the Democratic republicans to balance power between the newly formed political parties.
- These parties are much different from what we have now but they are the roots of what today's parties took for inspiration to make themselves what they are today.
- Since then many other parties have come into power and some have lost the influence they once had on society and no longer exists
- Ever since the formation of the Federalist, the U.S have adopted over 100 more parties in their political system.

THE MAJOR POLITICAL PARTIES

- Even though the United States have over 100 political parties only about 4 have any real influence and only 2 of those have enough power to constantly stay in politics year in and year out.
- The Democrats and the Republicans are the two MAJOR political parties that have the most power in the political field.
- The other two that have some power, are the Liberals and the Green parties. Both of these parties are followed by people who believe that the other two are not the way to go and think that the environment and defined by various theorist, including individual freedom for future generations.
- The Republicans and Democrats are also known as the conservative parties.

WHY ARE THEY SO IMPORTANT?

- Political parties are important to us because they decide what kind of leaders we will have.
- They provide us with a diverse range of political views.
- They help us not have to answer to dictatorship like other country have done so in the past and present.
- If we elect leaders from a political party that we believe could help us succeed the most, we sprout into a even bigger super power.

THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN THE TWO POWERHOUSES

- The two powerhouses of politics are the Democrats and the Republicans.
- Each have been around for over 100 years and neither look to be going away anytime soon either.
- The Democratic Party Stands for more equality on all fronts, meaning everyone will be treated equal no matter their face, gender, sexual, orientation, or race.
- The Republican Party however stands for a smaller federal government, and having the states to have the right to make their own law's according to the citizens beliefs.

THINGS I FOUND INTERESTING

- Being in the right political party isn't just about who's running for positions of power in that party, but it also impact your personal life but choosing the best beneficiary political party for you.
- If you join a party and fight for a believe that is best for your country and those believes could benefit you and your family.
- Something interesting I found is that you aren't forced into a pacific political party, there's hundreds from whom to choose from
- Talk about the Green Party **

THE FUTURE OF POLITICAL PARTIES

- The future of the political scene is bright
- With more and more college students getting involved and finding interest in studying politics and what makes a successful country I say that it is in good hands
- Different political parties are important to the future of them because different people have different opinions and would want to be able to discuss it and try for change and young people are interested in change if they can cause it.
- Political parties are the future of our society, you can either join up with one of the bigger ones or try and find one that you can get behind and help it grow.

MY FUTURE AND POLITICS

In my future. I hope to have a career in criminal justice preferably become a NYDP officer first and later on in my career I am hopeful to join the Federal Bureau of Investigation because I want to help people and prevent some of the most crimes committed against people who can't defend themselves.

My field won't be the most connected in politics but more so law enforcement, but I will still have political views and I will still support my political party because I want the best possible figure to run this country.

Even though my career won't be completely based on politics I look to be fully involved with every since election to have my voice heard.

Interviews

Merlyn 24, she had a weird perspective on political parties. She wants to be a nypd officer and she didn't really care much for politics in general. She voted for democrats because she didn't want Republicans to win because she didn't believe in their views.

Xavier 18, he didn't have any idea what political parties were, and thought the only way people became president was by signing up and spending a lot of money on campaigning. He has no idea what type of power a political party could hold. He didn't even know they existed.

Yolaury 17, she knew all about political parties but only the main two, she believed that the Democratic Party is the best because she likes their views the most. She believes that political parties are actually a big role in politics

Conclusion

Finally I concluded that different types of political parties create diversity for the average American citizen who isn't the biggest on politics, but that can find the party that's right for them and their beliefs.

If you don't know much about the other different types of political parties, get out and get some information. You never know if there's one that is exactly what you believe in and supports your views.

Political parties are what makes up most of the political voice that people have in Politics. It's the future of the United States, and knowing which party you are gonna be apart of could change the course of an unknown party to becoming a front runner in America politics
